town had sent her father to prison and her and her mother packing. Sheriff Lucas Quinn has waited eight years for Rachel to return to Rainwater, Texas and he's not going to miss the opportunity to get her back into his empty arms and his heart. Even if it means bending the rules a little to get to the truth. As Rachel and Lucas set out to prove her father's innocence, will love find its way back into their hearts? Will the truth destroy them? Can love survive all this time? Are they destined to be together forever?

With her life falling into the toilet, Maggie Alfieri escapes to the mountain town of New Freedom for a much-needed vacation with her best friend. What should be a relaxing few days turns into a new kind of hell when a tragic accident leaves her desperately searching for her lost friend in the wilderness. Now there's only one person she can turn to for help and that's the only man she's ever loved. The same man who broke her heart either years before. Shifter Jonah Cowan has been in love with Maggie since he was a child. He's tried to keep her at a distance since Maggie is human, but it's impossible when just being near her fuels his mating instinct. A search for a missing girl turns into a struggle for survival when the fae declare war on the shifter town. Jonah's priority is to keep Maggie safe and out of the crossfire, but will he be able to protect her from himself? Content Warning: This book contains graphic sexual content, "Caring deeply about our children is part of what makes us human. Yet the thing we call 'parenting' is a surprisingly new invention. In the past thirty years, the concept of parenting and the multibillion dollar industry surrounding it have transformed child care into obsessive, controlling, and goal-oriented labor intended to create a particular kind of child and therefore a particular kind of adult. In The Gardener and the Carpenter, the pioneering developmental psychologist and philosopher Alison Gopnik argues that the familiar twenty-first-century picture of parents and children is profoundly wrong--it's not just based on bad science, it's bad for kids and parents, too. Drawing on the study of human evolution and her own cutting-edge scientific research into how children learn, Gopnik shows that although caring for children is profoundly important, it is not a matter of shaping them to turn out a particular way. Children are designed to be messy and unpredictable, playful and imaginative, and to be very different both from their parents and from each other. The variability and flexibility of childhood lets them innovate, create, and survive in an unpredictable world. 'Parenting' won't make children learn--but caring parents let children learn by creating a secure, loving environment."--Provided by publisher.

She's the perfect tool for revenge... Marc lives in the limelight. Sweet, shy Ariella is still healing from the trauma of nearly dying. The last thing she needs is the world watching every move she makes. He knows that. It's best if he just keeps his distance. SHE DOESN'T KNOW WHAT TO THINK ABOUT HIM. Strong, sure, handsome, and far too intense for her, Marc terrifies her on a thoroughly feminine level. If they fall for one another, it will change everything. Ariella has enough to deal with now. Adding in what would be a very public romance with a dynamic man like Marc would just be more than she could handle. Being in the political arena can bring more than just unwanted attention. It can bring out enemies with a grudge. Now, there's someone out there who wants two things. Marc dead. And Ariella for himself... ?????CONCLUSION to the FINLEY CREEK: GENERAL trilogy.?????

The Travis series concludes with the fourth installment from award-winning author Lisa Kleypas. Wedding planner Avery Crosslin may be a rising star in Houston society, but she doesn't believe in love—at least not for herself. When she meets wealthy bachelor Joe Travis and mistakes him for a wedding photographer, she has no intention of letting him sweep her off her feet. But Joe is a man who goes after what he wants, and Avery can't resist the temptation of a sexy southern charmer and a hot summer evening. After a one night stand, however, Avery is determined to keep it from happening again. A man like Joe can only mean trouble for a woman like her, and she can't afford distractions. She's been hired to plan the wedding of the year—a make-or-break event. But complications start piling up fast, putting the wedding in jeopardy, especially when shocking secrets of the bride come to light. And as Joe makes it clear that he's not going to give up easily, Avery is forced to confront the insecurities and beliefs that stem from a past she would do anything to forget. The situation reaches a breaking point, and Avery faces the toughest choice of her life. Only by putting her career on the line and risking everything - including her well-guarded heart - will she find out what matters most.

MONTANA'S LITTLEST MATCHMAKER RUST CREEK RAMBLINGS Have you met eight-year-old Lily? The fast-talking street-smart New Yorker has charmed everyone here in Rust Creek Falls. She has even managed to win over Caleb Dalton, our curmudgeonly cowboy who usually avoids all things family related. Or could it be that Caleb's real interest lies in Lily's adoptive mom, Mallory Franklin? It's hard to believe our eternal bachelor would consider getting involved with someone who has a child. It's even harder to fathom that spunky Mallory would date a man whose only documented commitment is to playing the field. But Lily insists the two are the perfect couple, and who are we to argue? Stay tuned, dear readers, and see if Lily can lead them down the bridal path!
